Kadugodi's history dates back to the 16th century, when it was a small village under the rule of the Vijayanagara Empire. Its name, derived from the Kannada words "kadu" (forest) and "godu" (base), aptly reflects its origins at the foot of the Nandi Hills.

Over the centuries, Kadugodi has witnessed the rise and fall of various dynasties, each leaving its imprint on the town's cultural fabric. The influence of the Cholas, Hoysalas, and Mughals is evident in the architectural marvels that dot the landscape.

The Kadugodi Temple, dedicated to Lord Shiva, is a testament to the town's deep-rooted faith. Its intricate carvings and elaborate gopuram (tower) showcase the architectural prowess of the Vijayanagara era.
